Introduction:

As a sport, cyclocross enjoys a rabid fan base across Europe. Tens of thousands of fans pack the courses creating a festival-like atmosphere that combines the speed and frenetic energy of competitive bike racing with mud, sand, beer and vuvuzelas, generating a spectacle that is as fun for the racers as it is for the spectators.

Cyclocross is enjoying a dramatic rise in popularity in the United States. In January 2013, the UCI held the World Championships in Louisville, Ken., the first time ever outside of Europe. Since that event, the sport has experienced a groundswell of popularity throughout North America.

Organized in a grand prix format, Delta States Grand Prix (DSGP) rewards participation in the series by allowing riders to accumulate points over the weeks, culminating in the crowning of a series champion. By hosting multiple events across the region, we are able to bring the series to teams, clubs and communities that might not otherwise have the opportunity to get involved. We see this series as a way to promote the long-term health of recreational cycling in general, and we use cyclocross as a fun way to encourage individuals to get involved at a competitive level.

Our primary goal is to grow participation in this series year over year, and to gain recognition and support on a national level from the elite level riders whose racing opportunities had previously been limited south of the Mason-Dixon line.

Now in its fourth year as a USAC-sanctioned event series, DSGP will host race events across the entire LAMBRA region during the months of November and December with the final race serving as the District Championships, through which we will crown not only the champions of our district but also the series' points champions in their respective categories. From there, we hope to encourage a large entourage of riders to attend the 2017 National Cyclocross Championships to be held in Hartford, CT, in January.

1. All fields must have a minimum of 5 riders.
2. Points transfer from category to upgrade category on a 1:1 basis.
3. Helmets must be worn on course.
4. No bar ends per USAC rules.
5. A rider may enter a second race in the same day and only pay $10 on top of original entry fee to race second race.
6. All disputes and protests with respect to results and placings must be submitted to race officials within 15 minutes of the posting of final results.
7. Series Championships count for double points. All racers must race the series championships to be considered in competition for series points. Series placement, prizes and points will be announced and rewarded at podium of series championships. Series placement will be determined by combined score of best points from 6 races in the 7 race series, with all ties being decided by rider result in the series championships.
8. All prizes awarded at raceday podium ceremony – no show, no dough.

Scoring:

We are using the USAC upgrade points scoring and category system to determine a racer's category. In the cases of combined or overlapping category races, consistently successful riders may be compelled to race the next higher combined category for which they are eligible.

Men's Category 5 will be awarded mass start credits only, and no points will be accumulated towards a series overall winner. The objective in this category is to gain experience, skills, fitness and to "cat up" to 4s as quickly as possible. Race directors and district USAC officials will be monitoring performance to keep sand-bagging to a minimum.
