2008 USAC-MTB Promoter Incentive Program

- Insurance surcharges: $2 per rider per day
- One-day licenses are not required. Non-USAC-MTB members will pay a minimum $5 up-charge on the race registration fee and may only race in Beginner or Sport categories. Race promoters retain the $5 additional charges and are not required to submit these funds with their post-events.
- Expert, Semi-pro, and Pro riders are required to buy a USAC-MTB annual membership.
- USAC-MTB Promoter's Incentive Account
    - $5 from every annual USAC-MTB adult full price racing license ($60) sold for riders who live in the promoter's state during the 2008 calendar year will go into an incentive account to be divided among each state's promoters at the end of the racing (November 30th cutoff).
    - Distribution will be determined by percent of riders per day hosted by each promoter for their respective state.[1] If there is more than one USAC Club listed on the Permit, then the incentive earned for the event will be evenly distributed among the non-collegiate USAC Clubs listed on the Permit.
    - Rider days = the # of riders reported in the competitive post-event for insurance surcharges payment.

Example #1 — Saturday XC = 200 riders; Sunday DH = 50 riders

250 riders x $2 = $500 insurance surcharge payment due. Promoter earned 250 rider days toward end year payout.

Example #2 — Saturday XC = 200 riders; Saturday DH = 50 riders; 10 riders competed in both events

240 riders x $2 - $480 insurance surcharge payment due.
Promoter earned 240 rider days toward end year payout.

Events Not Eligible for 2008 USAC-MTB Promoter Incentive Payout

1. Collegiate Clubs and Collegiate-only (NCCA) mountain bike events are not eligible for the promoter incentive fund payout. If a collegiate event offers 'open' USAC-MTB categories and classes, the riders participating in these USAC-MTB 'open' events may be counted toward the payout (the collegiate events are excluded).
2. USAC-MTB National Championship events

[1] Wisconsin and Illinois are treated as one state for purposes of distributing the incentive.
